NARRATIVE		03/12/2025 12:42	ACO received call from Dispatch at 5:20am for a "Stray dog that was brought inside by civilian." 78 High Street – [REDACTED] when ACO arrived at the residence I called her and she stated she was walking her dog this morning and this stray dog came running over to them and out of concern she brought it inside because she was afraid of the busy road. She said she brought the dog inside at 5am, but that it was reactive towards and did not seem to like her dog. Her husband brought the dog downstairs to the front door. The dog appeared excited while with him, and then when he handed to ACO dog appeared nervous. ACO took the dog to the van to scan for a microchip and there was no microchip scanner in vehicle. ACO tried to gently guide/get the dog into the van but he appeared afraid and slightly growled and would not move. ACO did not want to catch pole the dog and stress him out or traumatize without first scanning it in case it was in a home surrounding the area. ACO Rabidis went to building to grab microchip scanner to assist. While waiting for her, the dog pulled ACO on scene back over to the porch. ACO Rabidis was unable to locate scanner and ACO Krimando was also on his way to relieve me from shift. Upon his arrival the three ACO decided to inquire with the Ms. [REDACTED] more about the dog by starting off and asking that since the dog appeared to like her husband and be more comfortable, asked if he would want to walk towards the van for an easier and more trusting and comfortable transition for the dog. Ms. Ippolito came down and the dog immediately and excitedly jumped all over her. ACO O'Grady asked Ms. [REDACTED] dog belonged to her. [REDACTED] started crying and said she found him a few days ago. I stated that during initial interaction, she told ACO that she found the dog at 5 AM this morning and now she is saying that she has had it for a few few days. ACO O'Grady told her the best way to set this dog up and everyone for success is to be transparent and honest, and asked her again if the dog belonged to her. [REDACTED] stated yes and that the dog is hers. She stated she has had him and he does	ACOMOGRADY

not get along with her other dog and she didn't know what to do so she called us saying she found the dog.
