My sincere apologies Megan, I forwarded the wrong documents. These are the most recent Revised Invoices and should reflect all changes we discussed.

Also, in the future, while you will no longer see the “meeting to discuss outstanding legal issues” entry, I should have done a better job explaining what that entry reflects. While Jen and I meet weekly to discuss an assignment or how we can best service a particular matter for all of our clients, these entries reflect actual legal strategy and efficiencies on how to research a particular matter or new developments that may impact the law as it applies to TEC. It isn’t simply a meeting amongst ourselves to say “what are you working on.”

As always, I invite you to question any entry or request additional information.

Thank you for your patience,

Damon

Hi Damon,

I get what you are saying about the accounting software and the balances...ours is funny like that sometimes too. However, I do not think you send me the 2nd revisions of invoice 17 & 33. There were several other revisions as noted in the markups provided for these invoices. I have attached them here again for your convenience.

I do see that the requested revisions have been made to invoice 43. I will print down this revision and prepare it for payment.

Attached please find the Revised Invoices as discussed. With respect to the balances paid, unfortunately, my system keeps a running tab, and once I put in that $4410 was received towards the total outstanding balance, it does not allow me to go back and allocate a portion for each invoice. As a result, on the most recent invoice, you will see the most recent balance added to that which was outstanding (including adjustments), a difference of $900.

My sincere apologies Megan, I forwarded the wrong documents. These are the most recent Revised Invoices and should reflect all changes we discussed.

Also, in the future, while you will no longer see the “meeting to discuss outstanding legal issues” entry, I should have done a better job explaining what that entry reflects. While Jen and I meet weekly to discuss an assignment or how we can best service a particular matter for all of our clients, these entries reflect actual legal strategy and efficiencies on how to research a particular matter or new developments that may impact the law as it applies to TEC. It isn’t simply a meeting amongst ourselves to say “what are you working on.”

As always, I invite you to question any entry or request additional information.

Thank you for your patience,

Hi Damon,

I get what you are saying about the accounting software and the balances...ours is funny like that sometimes too. However, I do not think you send me the 2nd revisions of invoice 17 & 33. There were several other revisions as noted in the markups provided for these invoices. I have attached them here again for your convenience.

I do see that the requested revisions have been made to invoice 43. I will print down this revision and prepare it for payment.

Good afternoon Megan:

Attached please find the Revised Invoices as discussed. With respect to the balances paid, unfortunately, my system keeps a running tab, and once I put in that $4410 was received towards the total outstanding balance, it does not allow me to go back and allocate a portion for each invoice. As a result, on the most recent invoice, you will see the most recent balance added to that which was outstanding (including adjustments), a difference of $900.

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to call me.

Good afternoon Megan:

Attached please find the Revised Invoices as discussed. With respect to the balances paid, unfortunately, my system keeps a running tab, and once I put in that $4410 was received towards the total outstanding balance, it does not allow me to go back and allocate a portion for each invoice. As a result, on the most recent invoice, you will see the most recent balance added to that which was outstanding (including adjustments), a difference of $900.

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to call me.

Damon

Once again, my apologies Megan as I try to resolve the glitches with this system. Things are deleted and then reappear, but ultimately its on me to proof the invoice before going out.

Please contact me if there are any issues.

On another note, I signed a PO back on May 3, 20024 and returned it to Jeanette, but I have yet to receive the check.

Thanks,
Damon

My sincere apologies Megan, I forwarded the wrong documents. These are the most recent Revised Invoices and should reflect all changes we discussed.

Also, in the future, while you will no longer see the “meeting to discuss outstanding legal issues” entry, I should have done a better job explaining what that entry reflects. While Jen and I meet weekly to discuss an assignment or how we can best service a particular matter for all of our clients, these entries reflect actual legal strategy and efficiencies on how to research a particular matter or new developments that may impact the law as it applies to TEC. It isn’t simply a meeting amongst ourselves to say “what are you working on.”

As always, I invite you to question any entry or request additional information.

Thank you for your patience,

Damon

Hi Damon,

I get what you are saying about the accounting software and the balances...ours is funny like that sometimes too. However, I do not think you send me the 2nd revisions of invoice 17 & 33. There were several other revisions as noted in the markups provided for these invoices. I have attached them here again for your convenience.

I do see that the requested revisions have been made to invoice 43. I will print down this revision and prepare it for payment.

Good afternoon Megan:

Attached please find the Revised Invoices as discussed. With respect to the balances paid, unfortunately, my system keeps a running tab, and once I put in that $4410 was received towards the total outstanding balance, it does not allow me to go back and allocate a portion for each invoice. As a result, on the most recent invoice, you will see the most recent balance added to that which was outstanding (including adjustments), a difference of $900.

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to call me.
