No worries. Whenever it is convenient for you. We had a council meeting tonight and I told them we would have it prepared for their next meeting. Good luck with the cleanup.

Subject: Audio Clarification

Glenn,

I put these instructions in the Fedex but this is very important- especially with this audio- the speech is recaptured in almost the whole thing but it will be painstakingly slow to transcribe. It is not "ear -friendly" but improved dramatically- depending on your speaker set up and sound card I gave you a few different clarifications to choose from, I prefer the last one on my system.

Playback:

In order to ensure optimal playback of your enhanced/clarified audio here are some important guidelines and suggestions:

Listen to your audio on good quality external speakers that are connected to your computer. Do not listen to it on your phone, computer monitor, iPad, laptop, or any other listening device that does not have external speakers.

Headphones (do not recommend earbuds or noise cancelling headphones) connected into the external speakers (if this is an option) are a good choice.

Please take into consideration the "sound card" in your computer. It may not have the capability to produce high quality audio. The on-board sound card in your computer has a very low-powered amplifier that is adequate to power small, efficient speakers in the mid and upper bands of sound that you will listen to from a short distance away.

Be cognizant of background noises that interfere with listening, AC Hum, generator, background office noise, typing and the like.

Speakers are important! Garbage in, garbage out. Playing a clarified audio on a small set of speakers or no speakers with no frequency range is a waste of time and money. If you want to be able to hear quality sound you must listen to the recording on quality speakers. If you only rely on computer speakers the sound is usually thin and tinny with little to no bass. Small speakers that fit into your laptop can only produce a portion of the frequency band that humans can hear. That means you will be unable to hear some of the sound in the lower frequencies. Always check the courtroom system for both audio and video prior to showing or playing evidence. This is crucial.

Video Playback:

I would also suggest downloading GOM Player. These video players can handle files for playback that most others such as Quick time or Windows media player cannot.

Call with any questions.

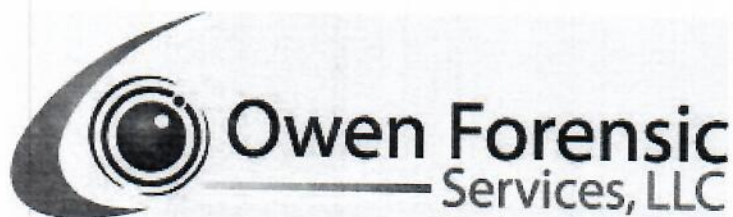

Merry Christmas!

That's what I thought, but he showed up at my house I was with a client so I told him to leave his number and when we got to the matter at hand I told him I would check with you first. I didn't know if he was a member of your board or not.
Thanks
Jen

Hi Glenn-

I was contacted by a Greg Babulak and he had questions about the work I did for the city of South Amboy. Since you were the contact person for this project I told him I would send out an email including both of you on it (see above) and if it was okay to share details with him about the work I did that you would have to authorize it.
If you have any questions you can give me a call Monday.

Subject: Response to Mr. Babulek

Answered with he authorization and permission provided by Glenn Skarzynski

- 1) what was the nature of the distortion? Floor noise, hum, reverb, clipping, EQ problems, distortion, LGC, hiss,
- 2) what was the cause of the distortion? Cannot say definitively Since I did not examine the setup most likely equipment, speaker, recording and microphone issues and the acoustics of the room might have played a factor.
- 3) how much of the audio was recoverable? The audio was not lost, it was an intelligibility issue due to the acoustical problems.
- 4) how much of the audio was discernable? The audio was significantly improved but some regions were still problematic.
- 5) what medium was used for recording the original audio and video? I was not there to examine the equipment nor do I know what equipment was used.
- 6) what medium of the recovered audio and video was given to the city? A clarified version on a passport drive.
