------	------	-------	---------

- Relatively quiet
- Frequently starts and stops play
- Easily becomes nervous

☐ Rough & Rowdy

- Mostly mutual play
- Typically very noisy and vocal
- Very physical, wrestling play style
- Grabbing and holding other dogs
- Can ramp up and escalate in play
- (if socially appropriate, will also calm down and deescalate play to avoid conflict)
- This style of play can trigger conflict with other dogs or “tip over” from play to arguments and/or conflicts

☐ Push & Pull Dogs

- Less mutual play
- Chasing, driving, and nipping the other dogs
- Not interested in directly engaging, prefers to move other dogs around
- Can get noisy, may use demand baring during play
- Can escalate – often ends in conflict because it can be annoying or antagonistic to other dogs
- May need handler to intervene in order to keep things polite

☐ Extreme & Intense

- Usually not mutual play – always monitor the other dogs to determine if they are mutually reengaging in play
- Rooted in prey drive, but it is still play
- Often noisy – growling and squealing
- Can escalate into potentially unsafe interactions
- Tends to need handler intervention more than other styles of play
- Provocative to other dogs in the yard and may influence them to behave aggressively towards the more vulnerable dog
