Manage your contact list to control the level of employee access

When you create a contact list, you are literally turning over the "keys" to your security system. It's very important to consider which employees to put on your contact list and the level of access they will be assigned.

Limit Level 1 access to senior trusted employees. Match the job responsibilities of each employee with their level of access. For example, if an employee will be in your business alone at any time, they should have a minimum of Level 4 access—providing them with the authority to cancel an alarm, if necessary.

#CSV FIRE ALARM - TROUBLE ON PANEL Smoke detector may need to be replaced.

Comment

Andrew Rizzo (187966) assigned this job to James McCall (187919) and changed the commitment date and time to 9/3/2020 10:00 AM - 12:00 PM.

{1 of 2} <!-- System was normal upon arrival. I checked history and saw that device 01030079 stair by room 11 went in and out of communication fault multiple times. I checked wiring and terminals were about quarter turn loose. Not exactly enough to lose

{2 of 2} communication or other devices would have been in trouble also. I replaced smoke head and it mapped into system. Panel is normal.
